Dear Fr. Leinhard,

About three years ago, we exchanged emails about whether or not Stephen Barr understood thermodynamics because of his conduct concerning an article about evolution published by the American Journal of Physics. You and Fr. Koterski indicated that you didn't feel qualified to question Barr's understanding of thermodynamics. I must confess that I still haven't gotten the journal to retract the absurd article, but I have documented how many people are collaborating with the AJP's misconduct. This should be of interest to historians.

It turns out the Stephen Barr also does not understand the arguments for God's existence. He is an advisor to Fr. Spitzer and wrote a book about God's existence. I don't think you can plead "not qualified" in this case. I have not yet gotten a response from Dr. Hornbeck.

Very truly yours,

David Roemer
