I see. The nature and existence of God and His Creation are not agreed upon. This was underscored for me as I toured the Holy Land last week. Since you have published your views, others will have an opportunity to carefully consider them. I regret that I am unable, due to the pressures of my responsibility, to consider taking up your cause. Anita

Dear David Roemer:

Thanks for your email letter. I believe I have some understanding of your frustration. I have had (including recently!) the experience of having my submission rejected by a philosophy journal.

The issue here will not be what opinions you hold. Many philosophers with distinguished academic careers are theists. Cartesian dualism is discussed by philosophers nowadays from lots of angles.

The issue will be, what new arguments, analysis, and assessments are you bringing to the table? On this question we all just have to accept the academic judgment of our peers. (I'm not the judge of whether my own philosophical arguments are good or not. This does not say our peers are infallible. There is just, at this time, no higher authority.)

Best, Dick Arneson

to Richard

Dear Dick,

I am fully expressed about the mind-body problem and the contemptible behavior of American academics because my insights are published here:

https://www.academia.edu/23340072/WHY_PEOPLE_BELIEVE_GOD_CAUSED_THE_BIG_BANG

https://www.academia.edu/20939526/An_Analogy_Between_Nazi_Germany_and_the_United_States

There are very few philosophers who believe in God and they are too cowardly to expose the lies and misinformation disseminated by their colleagues. What I am doing is documenting how ignorant, irrational, and dishonest American philosophers are.

The only angle about Cartesian dualism that makes sense is that it is nonsense. The APA is not publishing my blog because it will expose how American philosophers suppress the rational argument for God's existence. My guess is that you cannot give a knowledgeable and intelligent explanation of the concept of God. You probably think God is the creator of the universe. No?

emailed Cheshire-Calhoun 7/12/18

Hi David Roemer

I'm not the caretaker or administrator of the APA blog, so I can't help you. The APA blog must list on its website someone who is in charge.

That said, I should add that I would not be too hopeful about publishing your proof of God's existence on an APA web site.

The reasons that Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy declined to publish your work, will probably apply to the APA Blog administrators as well. You are of course welcome to post your work on your own blog or at your own webpage or the like.

But don't take the previous two paragraphs as authoritative. I am not the person in charge of the APA Blog.

All best,

Dick Arneson

Dear Daniel,
I am asking the APA to re-consider their decision not to publish my "blog" submission on the APA website. The attached submission analyzes 11 quotes, one of which is from a book of yours, about the mind-body problem from the point of view of modern Thomism. Since you are a full member of this organization, the APA might appreciate your advise.
Very truly yours,
David Roemer

Dear Dr. Roemer:
I have been retired to emeritus status for more than 2 years now. I have never been involved in the operation of the APA's journal. It came into existence long after my time on the Board of Officers. You have contacted the WRONG PERSON.
Best, John Cooper

Why are you telling me this?
In my role as advisor to NDPR I have no function in deciding which books get reviewed. My role is and is limited to recommending to the editor, Prof Gary Gutting, suitable people to review books he has selected for review in the journal.

 Dear Paul,
 By "substance dualism," I suppose you mean the absurd idea that human beings "have souls."
 Substance dualism is irrational, as I explain in the blog. The APA is not publishing my blog because it explains why materialism is irrational. You are confusing the question of how deep your relationship is with the APA with the question of how malicious is the decision not to publish my blog. By the way, I've sent the attached email to six of your colleagues at Palm Beach Atlantic U.
 Hello, David.
 The APA is not "my organization." I am a member of the APA which represents such a wide body of beliefs within its membership (including substance dualism). My membership is for professional reasons, but this doesn't mean that I subscribe to all of its shenanigans at the top level. I am also a member of the ETS, and I'm not always happy about how it goes about its business.
 Best,

Notes
 Dear Daniel,
 I am asking the APA to re-consider their decision not to publish my "blog" submission on the APA website. The attached submission analyzes 11 quotes, one of which is from a book of yours, about the mind-body problem from the point of view of modern Thomism. Since you are a full member of this organization, the APA might appreciate your advise.
 Very truly yours,
 David Roemer

You misspell two words.
 Dennett, Daniel C.
 Dear Daniel,
 How on earth could I have misquoted you? Maybe I put down the wrong page number? Perhaps it is a minor error in transcription? Have you changed your mind about dualism?

Jul 27 (8 days ago)
 to me
 You misquote me
 2. There is no philosophical argument here.
 This is not philosophy.
 The APA is right.

Dear David,

Thanks again for contacting the APA Blog. I have just looked over your most recent suggestion, and I think a post on the distinction between the soul and free will is a possibility. However, I am swamped with posts in production right now, and don't really have time to take on another one at the moment. Would it be possible for you to recontact me with a more fleshed out proposal (i.e. the equivalent of a journal article abstract) sometime in July? I apologize that I have to ask this, since I'm sure you want to start writing, but I'm worried that if you did, the draft you would send me would just lie in my inbox for weeks while I finished working on other posts.

Also, as a minor note, I would like you to reconsider the use of the term "lying" unless you have clear evidence that Gould believed something other than what he said. It's perfectly fine to disagree and say he was wrong, but without evidence like that above, I don't think you are justified making your accusation.

Sincerely, Nathan Eckstrand

email exchange dated May 24, 2018:

Dear David Roemer,

Thank you for your pitch to the APA Blog. I appreciate your interest in publishing with us.

In this case, I regret to say that the Blog is not interested in your idea. As the editor in charge of Research, it doesn't sound like your idea covers any new ideas that haven't been described by philosophers many times in the past. As such, I don't think it would make for a good research post.

Good luck finding a venue for your work.

Sincerely,

Nathan Eckstrand

Associate Editor, APA Blog

Dear Nathan,

What is your concept of God? My guess is that you think God is a being that created the universe. This concept is quite unintelligent and uninformed. The universe is a collection of molecules and only exists in the minds of the human beings that use the word universe.

The informed and intelligent concept of God is that God created human beings. I am a human being. I am not a collection of molecules. I have a drive to know and understand everything. I want to know what I am and why I began to exist. By rejection my offer you and the APA are propagating misinformation about the concept of God and the argument for God's existence.

The U.S. Supreme Court is making a decision about my First Amendment petition today (docket no. 17-1361). My lawsuit is based on the premise that philosophers in the U.S. at secular universities have the same mistaken ideas about God that you have.

David,
The decision NOT to publish this piece in any serious philosophical forum is an appropriate move insofar as the piece in question contains many unsubstantiated assertions along with no argumentation. Please do not respond as it will bounce.

As of July 1, 2018, I am no longer on the faculty at Suffolk University.

If you have academic business needing immediate attention regarding either Philosophy or Politics, Philosophy and Economics (PPE), please contact the Philosophy Department at 617-573-8399.

The new Director of PPE is Rachel McKinney, and she may be reached at rmckinney@suffolk.edu.

A new Chair of the Philosophy Department is expected to be named by mid-July, and I will update this auto-response then.

If you need to contact me for personal or scholarly reasons, I can be reached at gregory.fried(at)bc.edu.

Sincerely,
Gregory Fried

Much as I'd enjoy reading the attachment and links you sent, I unfortunately lost much of the sight in my right eye 7 months ago, and surgery in the summer didn't correct the problem. So reading is slow and tiring and I must decline everything I don't absolutely need to do

 Dear Mr. Roemer,
 I am simply not in position to assist you in the writing or the revising of any document. Nor does it fall within my brief to recommend someone to you for that purpose, much less to assign any person or group to take on such a charge. Please desist from involving me in any way henceforth in your quarrel with the Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy. I understand your frustration, but there's not world enough nor time to attempt a decisive refutation of every interlocutor who takes issue with Christian teaching.

Sincerely yours, J. McCarthy

Dear David Roemer,
Thank you for submitting a pitch for the APA blog; however, we believe the pitch you provided does not fit with the stated purpose and theme of the APA blog, viz. addressing philosophical issues, news, etc., for APA members and the philosophical community at large.

If you have any other pitches that may be more in line with the APA blog, please feel free to submit another pitch. Thank you for your time.
Kind regards,Nathan Oseroff

Hello,
Marygrove College closed its undergraduate programs in December of 2017. The College extends the courtesy of maintaining email accounts for former employees who had attained the rank of Full Professor, so I can still receive mail here. That said, I am no longer using this address for professional correspondence, and I will be checking it only infrequently. For this reason I ask that you please update your contact information for me. At the present time I can be reached at aa4502[AT]wayne[DOT]edu, or at swpatterson[AT]gmail[DOT]com.

Many thanks, and here's wishing you all the best.

Steven Patterson
Please remove me from your mailing list.

Thanks for your email. Due to my speaking schedule and our masters classes, I will be largely out of the office until early April. My email correspondence is likely to be delayed during this time. If you need immediate assistance regarding the Humanities and Human Flourishing Project, please contact Sarah Sidoti at sidotis@sas.upenn.edu. For assistance with Happy Together: Using the Science of Positive Psychology to Build Love That Lasts, please contact Suzie Pileggi Pawelski at suzieandjames@buildhappytogether.com. For all other urgent inquiries, please contact Aaron Boczkowski at aaronb2@sas.upenn.edu. Otherwise, I look forward to replying to your email as I am able or when I am back in the office.
Thank you.

Dear David Reimer,
Thanks for your email. I personally have no say in what does or does not get accepted by the APA blog. Nor do I want to have any such say. Certainly I would not want to make a judgment about your blog which anyway is, by professional standards in contemporary philosophy, not well informed and not well focused. If you wish to contribute to the APA blog (which I never read, by the way), you need to become better trained in the way members of the APA write philosophy. You can argue in principle for anything you want, but you have to do it according to currently accepted professional standards in the APA. That's all. I wish you well.
Sincerely, Peter L P Simpson

Greetings Professor Roemer--
Although I am a full member of the APA, there is no respect in which I am involved in publications for the APA.

For the sense in which I am a full member of the APA is simply that I am a lifetime member owing to the somewhat substantial one-time fee payment that I made in order to become a lifetime member.

There is no APA role that I have. None at all. And the reality is that one can have a lifetime membership in the APA and not have any official APA duties. For a lifetime membership simply means that one does not have pay the yearly fees in order to continue being a member of the APA. More precisely, a lifetime membership does not at all entail that one serves as an official for the APA. Not at all.

Thus, in no way--no way at all--have I implicated in the APA's decision not to publish an article since I am not at all involved in making decisions regarding which articles should be published by the APA. Indeed, it has been at least 12 years ago that an APA board member asked me to look and evaluate an article. Thus, Mr. Roemer: I did not make any decision that pertains to the article that you submitted for review. Indeed, there is absolutely no respect in which I even knew that you had submitted an article to be reviewed. For being a lifetime member of the APA does not entail--nor has it ever entailed--that one's professional responsibility is to evaluate articles that are submitted to the APA. If someone put a gun to my head and said "Tell me about the essay submitted by Roemer or I will kill you," then my death is what would happen. For the APA never brought your essay to my attention. Accordingly, the simple truth of the matter is that (a) I do not know anything about your essay. In particular, (b) there is no respect at all in which the APA brought your essay to my attention.

Sir, you are the only one to bring your essay to my attention. And that happened today. I am so very, very sorry. For it is manifestly obvious that you deserve to be treated in a much better manner by the American Philosophical Association.

Sincerely
Laurence Thomas

10/21/15 sent Greg LaNave message as well as a copy of the essay.

The Catholic Church is not a profit-making business. I have some experience working for businesses. The key to success is finding ways to increase the number of customers by hook or by crook. However, you can't afford to antagonize important executives in the company. The Pontifical Faculty of the Immaculate Conception should be trying to assist the Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith and the Holy Father in how to deal with my criticisms of the Catholic Church in the United States.

Dear Fr. Torchia,

Thank you for responding to my telephone call and email. I'm forwarding the email I sent to Mark Kiley, who is a theologian at St. John's. Professor Kiley's response to this email was to say I should define my terms and submit an article to the Thomist. He said the Thomist will discuss my ideas with me. In the meantime, I am in the process of re-writing the article. I'll be bringing in quotes from "The One and the Many" by Norris Clarke, S.J. What I really want is to give a seminar about science and religion to a group of theologians who can then assist the Catholic Church in its teaching responsibilities.

Dear David,

Greetings. I received your telephone message this afternoon, and I immediately communicated your inquiry to Fr. Bellamah in Washington. At this point, I am an Associate Editor of The Thomist. Accordingly, I only review those submissions in my own areas of specialization, or when requested to do so by the editorial staff. I am not one of your designated reviewers. So it would be best to direct any further inquiries regarding your submission directly to The Thomist office in Washington. I wish you well in your evaluation process. All best wishes, Joseph Torchia, O.P.

10/17/2015 Sent additional paragraph and told about newevangelist.me.
10/9/15 sent copy of email to Fr. Flanagan

email sent on 10/6/15: To the Editor:

If you read all of the emails I am forwarding, you will see that I wrote an article titled "Why People Believe God Caused the Big Bang," which I already submitted it to the Journal of American Academy of Religion, but I am afraid they will reject it without any explanation or discussion. This is what happened when I submitted it to Science, Religion and Culture. I am hoping that your editorial staff will be more helpful.

Rev. N. Joseph Torchia, O.P., Ph.D.
Professor of Philosophy

Before writing this article, I filed a complaint against Robert Spitzer, SJ, for practicing pseudoscience to proselytize with the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. This article offers a theory that explains why a Catholic theologian would promote irrational arguments for God's existence. I live in New York, and will have no trouble going to Washington DC to give an oral presentation of my theory.

Your message has been forwarded to "editors@plato.stanford.edu", which is where we handle email concerning the Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy. It will be answered there in the order received. (At present, I am traveling, and so some one else may respond.)
All the best,
Yours
